The Emperor's Address to the Soldiers Chalons-Anniversary of Solferino-The Franco-Belgium Conference Likely to Fall

Paris, June 24, 1869. The Emperor to-day visited the camp of Chalons and made a speech to the soldiers. He reminded the army that this was the anniversary of the battle of olferino, and said he was pleased to see that they had not forgotten the great cause for which they had not forgotten the great cause for which they fought ten years ago. The Emperor continued as follows:—"Preserve the remembrance of the battles fought by your fathers and yourselves; for our victories are the history of the progress of civilization. You will thus maintain the military spirit, which is the triumph of noble over vulgar passions; it is fidelity to the flag, devotion to country. Continue in the same course and you will

Desperate Political Affray in Richmond.

WASHINGTON, June 24, 1869. During the progress of registration in Richmond this evening, at the office located within the Mayor's hall, a desperate and bloody affray occurred be-tween a civilian named Kelly and a number of policemen, resulting in perhaps mortally wounding Keliy and slightly wounding two of the police. A white man named Peasly and a mulatto named Brant had for some time been engaged in a violent discussion, both claiming that the race to which they respectively belonged should rule the country. A blow was given by one of the parties, when Cap tain Calaghan, of the police, ordered the arrest o the white man, who insisted that the other party should also be arrested. Kelly, who is a white challenger, then came forward and took the side of Peasty, the white man, and a white challenger, then came forward and took ihe side of Peasiy, the white man, and a considerable row might have then taken place but for the opportune appearance of the Chief of Police, who himself arrested both Peasiy and the mulatio Brant. This act occurred in the Mayor's court room, through a doorway of which the Chief of Police disappeared with the two prisoners. Captain Calaghan, who, during the war, was commandant of castle Thunder, advanced upon Kelly. The latter receded from him and warned Calaghan not of approach him, as he, Calaghan, was a scalawag in having turned a radical, a perjurer in having taken the tron-ciad, and that as soon as the election was over he, Kelly, had the papers then in his pocket that would send Calaghan to the Penitentiary. Enraged at this abuse, Calaghan ordered four policeman to arrest Kelly. They seized him and ne resisted with great desperation as he was forced to the doorway Calaghan following. When in the doorway a violent struggle ensued, and as Kelly was held to the floor by the four policemen and being dragged through it, Calaghan snot him, the ball taking effect in Kelly's left shoulder. With a terrible effort the wounded man freed himself and succeeded in gaining possession of one of the policemen's pistols, which had dropped in the struggle. Calaghan had, however, fired again, his ball this time passing through Kelly's abdomen from left to right. Staggering under the double wounds Kelly fred several shots, two of them taking effect and slightly wounding two of the policemen, before he was again setzed and held. A large crowd of both races now came rushing into the room, attracted by the noise of the pistol shots, and but for the promptness of the police a terrible riot might have ensued. A man in the crowd remarked to Calaghan that if Kelly died he was his murderer, to which Calaghan responded, "I'm not sorry, then if idd kil him." This is the second time that Calaghan and Kelly have had an encounter because of the former's political apostacy. Calaghan has been

STATE CONVENTIONS

Republican State Convention at Bangor-Joshua L. Chamberlain Renominated for

BANGOR, June 24, 1869. The Republican State Convention which assem-bled here to-day was the largest delegate convention ever convened in this State, nearly every town in the State having a full representation. The convention was called to order by Hon. J. G. Blaine, chairman of the State Committee, who nominated Hon. Lott M. Morrill, of Augusta, for temporary chairman.

Mr. Morrill accepted the chair in an eloquent speech. A Committee on Credentials, consisting of one from each county, was appointed; also a like Committee on Permanent Organization. It was voted that all resolutions should be referred to the Committee on Resolutions, and that the county delega-tions should appoint the members of the State Committee and of the Committee on Resolutions.

Adjourned till afternoon.
On re assembling, Mr. J. W. Porter, from the Committee on Credentials, reported the whole numper of delegates present at 1,172. Mr. Vinton, from the Committee on Permanent Organization, report-the Committee on Permanent Organization, reported that the temporary organization be made permanent, with the addition of one vice president from each county. The county delegations, through their chairmen, reported the members of the State Committee for the ensuing year.

A committee of one from each county was appointed on resolutions. A like committee was appointed to receive, assort and count the votes. Having attended to their duty, the committee to receive, assort and count the votes reported through their chairman. J. D. Stetson, of Lewiston, as follows:—Whole number of ballots, 1.105. Joshia L. Chamberlain had 694; Sioney L. Perham had 375; scattering, 36.

On motion of Major T. E. Shaw, of Paris, the nomination of Mr. Chamberlain was made unanimous.

The Committee on Resolutions, through their chairman, Mr. S. H. Blake, reported the following resolutions:—

First—That we hall with joy the restoration of peace and the supremacy of the constitution.

Second—That, with a restored Union, the thanks of the nation are first due to the noble men who, mindless of life, braved dangers of field ann ocean for its preservation; and it is a source of gratification to patriotic citizens that an army of more than a million of solders have returned to their homes and their industrial pursuits without disturbance, and are now mindring with their fedious citizens in the ordited of the continuous of the continuous disturbance, and are now mindring with their fedious citizens in the ordited sold of their wounds.

Conservative Republican State Convention-Party Organization Effected-The Yerger-Oram Murder Trial.

JACKSON, June 24, 1869. The Conservative Republican State Convention adjourned last night after organizing the Union republican party of Mississippi, and passing resolu-tions looking to an early restoration of the State publican party of Mississippi, and passing resolutions looking to an early restoration of the State government in strict accordance with the reconstruction laws; setting forth that the repeated failures of all former and existing organizations to restore the State and meet the requirements of the republican spirit of our institutions, by insisting on measures of proscription far exceeding the provisions of the constitution of the United States and the reconstruction acts, have rendered them unworthy of the respect and confidence of the voters of Mississippi; lavoring the proposed fifteenth amendment; deprecating attempts to impose greater disabilities than imposed by Congress; piedging unwavering support of General Grant; favoring universal suffrage and universal amnesty on the reconstruction of the State to federal relations, and pledging themselves to urge Congress to remove political disabilities incurred by participation in the rebellion. The Central Executive Committee was authorized to issue an ardress to the people, and to call a State convention to nominate State officers whenever expedient. Entire harmony prevailed.

IMPORTANT ARREST OF COUNTERFEITERS.

Capture of Counterfeiters, with All Their Stocks of Dies, Presses, Counterfeit Currency, &c. Washington, July 24, 1869.

Colonel Whitly, chief detective in the service of the United States Treasury, assisted by John Clarvoe, his principal attaché, has made arrests in Mavoe, his principal attache, has made arrests in Maryiand. Pennsylvania, New York and several Western States of counterfeiters and counterfeit money, plates, presses, dies and other materials. About one dozen men altogether have been arrested in the last six weeks. The Indiana gang were arrested some days ago, near Fort Wayhe, while engaged in making money, and 400,000 counterfeit noies of twenty-five cent currency were seized, with twelve sets of steel plates, fifty sets of dies, several presses and a lot of ink and other materials. Solicitor Bannield has determined to support Colonel Whitly to the fullest extent of the law in breaking up the gang of counterfeiters, whose operations ramify all over the country. A number of important arrests and seizures lately made will be given to the public in a few days, which will show the complicity of expert counterfeiters equal to anything ever before heard of in this or any other country. The twenty-five cent note counterfeit just captured is a finished initiation, and a large amount of it has been circulated by the gang. The late arrest of a government officer in Western New York who was found to be in complicity with Sims promises developments of great importance to the secret service. It is said that sims' friends expended $20,000 to obtain his nardon several years ago. Mr. George B. The Brooklyn Union Regatta-Brilliant Spec-

The Alice, Knte, Onward, Bayonne and Annie Mack the Winners. Fain would the gallant yachtmen have implored the wrath of Juno on their deet, cheered Eolus for launching forth his winds, and praised the goddess for the flerceness of her irc. But the stormy caves were barred, and a glorious spread of canvas was destined to flap taxily in a dazzling sun. The array was magnificent, and under more auspictous circumstances the Brooklyn Union Regatta of 1869 would have been an event hereafter to be recollected with pride. As it was, marred considerably by the most variable weather, the regatta gave unbounded satisfaction and was truly a credit to the club. In vachting the chances of if foul, so be it; if fair, then welcome the breeze. As an exhibition, however, the regatta yesterday surpassed anything of the kind that has been witnessed for years. The interest manifested in the affair was truly immense, and, apart from the sailing, the display was a brilliant fête worthy of record among those splendid spectacles of which one often reads with intense delight. There is certainly not a more popular yacht club than the Brooklyn in America, and its members evidently determined to lose nothing of the favorable opinion they had previously created. In fact, everything that possibly lay in their power was done to render their annual event as orilliant and agreeable as possible. One important feature characterized the event—the nearty encouragement of yachting and the cordial welcome of strangers. A union regatta must ever tend to the improvement of craft; for the event yesterday, the second of the kind ever given in the United States, will, most assuredly, be attended with the most beneficial results. It was a pity that the wind died out, otherwise the competitors would have been more thoroughly tested. But apart from the speculations, apart from everything except that which ultimately concerned the event, it is necessary to picture matters as they were pre-

It was one of those lovely, blushing, breezy, health-ful, charming ones that lift the heart and relieve the mind. Invigorating in its breath, it naturally suggested a brilliant prospect for the race. To be sure sol shot forth his prancing rays, but their influence was all the while tempered by a gentle, yet most re-treshing wind. Light hearts and sentimental heads, lively belies and dainty cavaliers crowded many a pier towards nine o'clock, for steamers were to call for them, and meanwhile they were buoyed up with the most delightful hopes. The steamers arrived, gally decorated with the most variegated bunting, and snipping their tender freight-though, by the way, each boat was crammed respectably—they steered for the scene of action. But the lazy ascent of smoke from many a commercial chimney—the heedless manner in which it curied into the air—betokened a dearth of the wished-for breeze. Yet away they paddled forth joyously, leaving the din and turmoil of the GOWANUS BAY.

Surrounded by the most delightful scenery-and Gowanus is a pretty place; gazed at through many a telescope and criticised by as many more who had ione, the racers lay calm at anchorage. Well indeed might they be still, for towards eleven o'clock and after it they could scarcely have stirred for a golden prize, the wind having taken its leave, while its old It was simply broiling, and excessively good at that. The judge's boat started from a pier off the club house and went forth to marshal the feet. There was some difficulty attached to that duty, masmuch as the yachts had not yet got into line, and the wind being nowhere there seemed but little probability of getting them into order. Some went floating about here and there at the slowest possible speed, evidently bent upon attracting attention, particularly the small sloops which could no brilliant deeds in a calm. Messrs. M. M. ARRIVAL OF SPECTATORS.

There was no mistaking the approach of a brilliant assemblage. Not that the sparkling airs from the French operas would in themselves manifest that fact, but the coming of a bright and picturesque throng—a perfect congregation of smiles—became evident by the waving of the most delicate and showy cambries. From several points of observation the visitors approached, heralded by the most enchanting airs, which sounded charmingly over the placid sea. At a distance the steamers appeared as dark masses, their blackness being relieved by the froit on the water, but their nearer approach completely changed the aspect of affairs. The sweet strains soon became recognizable, and the gay and picturesque costumes of the tair freight, the stylish panorama of hundreds, the flannel coat, the blue jacket with brass buttons and the hundred other nautical emblems everywhere to be seen heiped to form a scene worthy of recollection. The place resounded with the most popular music, gay streamers floated in the air, the crowds gathered from all quarters on the water and the event was awaited with pleasure.

APPEARANCE OF THE PLETT.

Some yachts lay close together; others, with an eye to business, kept aloof from all connection, and merely awaited the signal to depart. Here and there men were seen running up and down the decks, some on the bowsprit and others again aloft. It was a busy time. Yet now and then an anxious look was cast towards the judges' boat, as if those on board were to blame for the delay. It was nearly twelve octock, and not a breath of wind stirring. Clever men, in their own opinion, prognosticated that there would be no race, but the nautical judiciary thought otherwise, and wisely awaited the favors of good old Neptune, who was apparently dozing the entire morning.

THE COURSE.

The course was from a stakeboat off the club house at Gowanus bay to and around a stakeboat off the Southwest Spit, turning it from east to west; thence to toe house stakeboat, passing the same to the westward, the yachis being obliged to pass eastward of all buoys on West Bank and to keep westward for for Lafayette both going and returning. The course was the same for the prizes of the Brooklyn Union regatta, as well as for those of the club itself. The distance was sufficiently long for all yachts competing.

The second and third divisions were anchored 200 yards to the northward of the above, in the same order, and the fourth division, open sloops, were placed to the northward of the second and third classes. The judges delayed the signal as long as possible, there being no wind to effect the departure of the yachts, but a slight breeze springing up from the south they judiciously availed themselves of the opportunity and ordered the first gun to get ready at thirty-five minutes past twelve o'clock. The greatest activity was exhibited on board the yachts, and the helin of each was grasped by a tirm and ready hand, while the men were likewise on the tubles of expectation. At half-past twelve the gun boomed forth and the two schooners and first division sloops were speedily under way. Three minutes after the second and third received a similar notification, and at thirty-five minutes past twelve the fourth division was on the wing. The start was a beautiful one and spiendidly effected, while the spectacle was brilliant and truly enlivening. Indeed, a more lovely exhibition never quitted Gowanus bay. Gliding through the calm and placid waters the fieet stole gently, the snow white sails of the craft looking extremely bright in the rays of the burning sun. The display evoked the universal approbation of all the spectators, and the yaents, clustered together, left their anchorage amid a storm of cheers. The start was a grand pageant, never to be forgotten. As aircarly mentioned, the breeze was extremely slight and the yachts worked their way out in almost drifting style. A few minutes after the start, however, the wind luckily increased in force and the grand Union regatta was begun.

With commendable dexterrity the Gracie shot out in front in an easy and graceful style, with every inch of canvas spread, followed by the Madeline not far behind. The Lois also displayed some activity in getting off and going in the wake of the Madeline. Behind her came the Pysche and the Kate, the latter making rapid progress on her way out. The schooner Alice was somewhat in the rear of her opponent, the Lois, and was evidently not doing much to catch her, owing to the light wind which prevailed. Next came the Quit Vive in lively style, onward, Muskodeed, R. Kelly, Cyrene, Agnes, White Cap, Niagara, Blue Bail, Flyaway, Coquette, Wanderer, Hoop La, Clio, Sophia, Apolio, Annie Mack, Bayonne, Phantom and others. The sight was certainly one of the most beautiful that could be witnessed. The wind harded round to the southwest and the Gracie microsing her speed quickly shot ahead, closely pursued by the Madeline, the Kate and the Lois bringing up the rear of the foremost rank. The Onward and Ames Kept close together, but s away and others. In this order they proceeded for a mile or so, the positions varying very slightly, with the exception of the increase rapidly being inade by the Gracie.

AT BAY RIDGE, motionless almost as the tombs in Greenwood, the dark toliage of which conceated the headstones, the vachts lay becalmed, and the bright hopes of an exciting race were suddenly abandoned. For fully ten or fifteen minutes the fleet stood shill. But the feeling akin to disappointment was quickly exchanged for one of pleasure, for the wind again spring up and once more the pretty contestants scudied away. The Gracie evidently caught it first and rushed to the front, the Madeline still a short distance in the rear. All the sloops carried their full salis, the two schooners having set their foresalis, topsalis, fing libs, jib topsalis, staysalis and gaif topsalis. The small yachts went along nicely in the light breeze, while the scaooner loss appeared to be losing no ground whalever. The Alice, however, appeared to be not so well favored by the breeze, and her progress was, therefore, not very rapid. THROUGH THE NARIOWS.

The Gracie tacked straight towards Fort Richmond, and being now considerably ahead turned about before the others had commenced to tack at all. She was nevertheless hotly pursued by the Madeline, Kate and others. The Lois kept more closely into shore and made towards the New York Club House. She was followed by the Kate, rapidly guining upon her, the Muskodeed, white Cap, duward, Niagara and the Bayonne, the last mentioned scudding along in splendid style, not far behind, the Science, Gracie (third division). Mary and the Agnes coming up gracefully. At length the breeze appeared to strike the Alice, and her canvas began to fill with good results. The Qui Vivè lea the White Cap. Seiene, Flying Cloud, Ida, Restless and a lew others close together. The Muskodeed and Gracie (third) had quite a lively brush coming through the Narrows and the Southwest Spit. for the breeze was now pretty fresh. The Gracie was over two mil others not taken.

After turning the stakeboat the wind freshened somewhat and the racers sped their course towards home. The Gracie still kept the lead, while the alice and Lois were for some time almost beam and beam. Slightly in advance of the Alice, the Clio went gaily along, while the Annie Mack led the latter. The Qui Vive was by no means behind, and bent right to her work with a will, following in the wake of the Ida, the Madeline next and the others coming up. The Alice at length overhauled the Lois slightly, while several other changes in position took place. After an interesting contest towards the houn stakeboat

VISIT OF THE FORTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT

NEW HAVEN, Ct., June 24, 1869, Yesterday a battalion of the Forty-seventh regi-ment, New York State National Guard, of Brooklyn, very hearty and cordial welcome. Their coming had been looked forward to with pleasant anticip tion by a large number of the citizens, especially those connected with the city military organiza tions, and their arrival was the signal of earnest and courteous endeavors to render their brief stay in the City of Elms one to be remembered with gensteamer State of Maine, at five o'clock in the morn ing, having left New York at ten o'clock in the morning, having left New York at ten o'clock on the previous evening. It consisted of four companies, under command of Major Rogers, numbering about 125 men. At six o'clock the New Haven Grays, one of the crack companies of the commonwealth, under the command of Captain Howarth, together with the officers of the Second regiment Connecticut National Guard, marched down to the steamer and received the battalion in the usual military manner. After an interchange of greetings the line was formed and marched up Chapei street in the following order:-Felsburg's band; New Haven Grays officers of the Second regiment; Forty-seventh drum corps and band; battalion of the Forty-seventh regi-ment. They marched first to the armory of the National Blues, where the visiting soldiery received the welcomes of the members of the Blues. Then they marched down to the armory of the Grays, where they were served with a collation. From the armory they went to the Tonkine Hotel and sat down to one of "mine host" Bradby's best breakfasts. This refreshing meal hayling received due attention.

the forenoon was very agreeably spent in exploring the city and admiring its beauties, in company with members of the city militia, who took great piesaure in acting as guides. The weather was most admirable, affording a fine opportunity to ramble about the town. Many of the Forty-seventh met freinas in town, and with them they whiled away the hours until dinner time in an agree-nile manner. The officers had scarced flushed their Figaro's, when an invitation according to the city governments of the city flush. They forthwith went, and were met by the Adermos and Common Council. Alderman Been greet, homes they government to the city and major ficts, who had eman been regret, homes they government to the city, and Major Rogers, in behalf of the battalion, replied with many thanks for the courtesies shown. Refreshments were again furnished, and with sparkling wine toasts of an appropriate character were drank, and speeches were made by General Meserole, Colonel Austin and others. They returned to the hotel only to find an invitation for them to repair to Adjutant General Merwin's office, at the State House. They did so under the escort of the officers of the Second regiment C. N. G. They met with a cordial reception from General Merwin, who immediately induced them to seat themselves around a table, in an adjoining room, laden with a tempting array of refreshments, to which amid a gental flow of conversation they addressed themselves. There were no speeches, but only a very pleasant hour of social intercourse.

At noon the battalion took dinner at the Tontine, and at three o'clock they assembled on the Green, and the city began to assume a holiday appropriate and the city began to assume a holiday appropriate of the city more propriate of the city of the USURY LAWS.—The usury laws of several of the States are in process of revision. The new law in New Hampshire provides that the lender may receive interest as mgh as nine per cent, by special contract, the legal rate remaining at six per cent unless otherwise specified. The Usury bill now pending in the Connecticut Legislature is substantially a copy of the Massachusetts law, providing that six per cent shall continue to be the legal rate where no rate is mentioned, but that borrowers and lenders may agree in writing to any other. The House hesitates to interiere with the ancient usages of the State in this respect, but its hesitation will hardly affect the practice of business men, who have settled this question for themselves in spite of usage and law together.—Boston Advertiser, June 24.

Filter the Croton.

The DIAPHRAON FILTER, manufactured by ALEXAN-DER MCKRNZIE & CO., 55 West Fourth street, is the kind of porous filter to which I alluded in my recent report to the Croton Board, I consider the artificial sandsions which constitutes the filtering medium to be an excellent article for the purpose. The instrument is quite durable, and requires to be reversed occasionally to insure its action.
